It occurred in Manchester during a per-formance of "Macbeth," and in the scene where Macbeth says to one of the erers "There's blood upon thy Irving put so much earnestness into his words that the murderer forgot his proper answer, ("'Tis Banquo's, then,") and replied, in a startled voice: "Is there? The public schools presented quite as active a scene today as yesterday. The work of enrollment goes on although the great bulk of the pupils were enrolled yesterday. But a few of the teachers are not in their places, however, by the end of the week everything will be ery will be running smoothly. The number of pupils who entered school yesterday were 11,000 an excess of 246 over the opening day last year.

The high school opens upon the most encouraging year of its history. It received a set back this morning, how-ever, by the fire, a most deplorable occurrence, as the school had started in under such favorable conditions. The enrollment yesterday was 632 while last year it was 571. The capacity of last year it was 571. The capacity of the school was taxed to the very limit and now that several recitation rooms have been almost destroyed by the fire, it will be necessary to find other quar-ters for some of the students or dis-cintinue the school until the rooms are repaired. This axident to the school is not looked upon as an evil omen as is not looked upon as an evil omen, as the teachers, including Prof. Eaton, to-gether with the school board, are looking forward to an unusually favorable year. The beginning class numbers 230, about one third of the number. The courses have been changed to some extent so that they are more satlefactory now than ever. There will be more practical and thorough work. English is to be emphasized more and military drill will be given in the first two years of the classical, scientific and English courses.

"I thought it would be easy enough to convert the lay people of the town, but realized, of course, that the minisbut realized, of course, that the minis-ters would be a harder task. I remem-ber one of the first sermons I preached with that idea before me. It was a hot summer day, and a gentleman very much under the influence of liquor slid into the rear part of the church and went to sleep. It was somewhat dis-quieting at first, but I soon warmed up to the subject and forgot him. What happened has always been a warning to me against very loud preaching—I waked him up. My vehemence so disturbed him that he arose, walked unturbed him that he arose, waiked un-steadily up the aisle, and stopped in front of the pulpit. I was dreadfully embarrassed. I remember, but I re-tained sufficient presence of mind to take what I thought was an efficient and brilliant means of bridging over the gap, for, of course, I had stopped preaching when he stood still and looked at me. Leaning over the pulpit I remarked suavely;

"I perceive that my good brother is "Before anyone could move, however he lifted his head and, fixing his blink-
